The unique combination of active substances increases the efficacy of Verben®, resulting in significantly improved control of the most economically important diseases compared to the standalone application of prothioconazole.

Verben® is distinguished by the following practical advantages:

- Gas phase acting as a shield, protecting treated and untreated tissues.
- Enhances the immune response of the crop.
- Stops the viability of spores, thus preventing the cycle of reinfection upwards in the plant.
- Directly inhibits the development of germinating spores and infection. Exhibits strong preventive, stopping, and curative action.
