Larry Korn created a free Permaculture training website to promote and encourage the deep connection between the land and people.

At <http://www.permaculturedesigntraining.com/> you can enroll in a 72-hour online course aimed at teaching anyone in the world the principles of permaculture. The course is entirely online and in English. It contains educational interviews with various lecturers from around the world, concerning sustainable living and building resilient communities. According to the author's principles, you only pay for the issuance of a certificate. The vast library of information, video lectures, and other resources are free and just a click away.

Larry Korn is a leading authority in the field of permaculture from America and a student of Masanobu Fukuoka, who is the author of the first book on Permaculture, "The One-Straw Revolution". The book examines in detail the issues of natural farming.
